Notice of a Discussion on Tuesday, 11 October 2016

The Vice-Chancellor invites those qualified under the regulations for Discussions (Statutes and Ordinances, p. 103) to attend a Discussion in the Senate-House on Tuesday, 11 October 2016, at 2 p.m. for the discussion of:

1. Twenty-first Report of the Board of Scrutiny, dated 21 June 2016 (Reporter, 6433, 2015–16, p. 776).

Elections to the Council and the Board of Scrutiny

3 October 2016

Council of the University

The Vice-Chancellor gives notice that an election is to be held of eight persons to serve as members of the Council for four years from 1 January 2017. Members are to be elected in the following classes under Statute A IV 2:

- (a) two from among the Heads of Colleges;
- (b) two from among the Professors and Readers;
- (c) four from among the other members of the Regent House.

The Council is the principal executive and policy-making body of the University. It has general responsibility for the administration of the University, for defining its mission, for the planning of its work, and for the management of its resources. The Council deals with relations between the University and the Colleges, and conducts negotiations with outside bodies on many matters (other than those relating directly to the educational and research programmes of the University, which are dealt with on its behalf by the General Board of the Faculties). It is responsible for the appointment or nomination of certain members of internal and external bodies, and for many student matters (excluding the selection of entrants, which is a College concern). Further information about the Council is available to members of the University on the Council website (<https://www.governance.cam.ac.uk/committees/council/>). Questions about its work can be addressed to the Registry by emailing registry@admin.cam.ac.uk.

Duties and responsibilities of Council members

Council membership offers a particularly rewarding and demanding experience. The University is both an exempt charity,¹ and a corporation established by common law. As such, Council members are both charity trustees of the University and, effectively, its corporate directors. They have associated legal responsibilities and duties, and are required to promote the interests of the University and act with integrity, care, and prudence.

It is strongly recommended that those considering standing for nomination review the Handbook for Members of the Council, which sets out the Council's primary responsibilities. Section 4 of the Handbook provides advice and guidance to members of Council on their legal and other responsibilities. The Handbook is available to members of the University to download from the bottom of the Council web page at <https://www.governance.cam.ac.uk/committees/council/handbook-2016/>. Potential nominees might also wish to familiarize themselves with the key aspects of the University's Statutes and Ordinances (<http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/univ/so/>), the most recent Budget and Allocations Report (Reporter, 6426, 2015–16, p. 525), and the Annual Report and Financial Statements (Reporter, 6408, 2015–16, p. 226).

Further useful information is provided by HEFCE (<http://www.hefce.ac.uk/reg/charityreg/>), and the Charity Commission (<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/the-essential-trustee-what-you-need-to-know-cc3>). This information includes details of the extent of a charity trustee's personal liability. Instances of personal liability are rare and unlikely to occur, providing trustees act honestly, prudently, in good faith, and in the best interests of the University, and in compliance with legislation and the University's governing documents. Nonetheless, it is important for nominees to recognize and accept the obligations that Council membership would confer upon them.

¹ The University has charitable status but is exempt from the statutory requirement which otherwise obliges a charity to register with the Charity Commission. HEFCE is the principal regulator of the University as regards its compliance with its legal obligations in exercising control and management of its administration as a charity.

Board of Scrutiny

The Vice-Chancellor gives notice of an election to fill two casual vacancies on the Board of Scrutiny. Members are to be elected in the following classes under Statute A VII:

- one member in class (c)(i) (a person who has been a member of the Regent House for not more than ten years on 1 October 2017), to serve with immediate effect until 30 September 2019;
- one member in class (c)(ii) (a member of the Regent House), to serve with immediate effect until 30 September 2017.

The Board of Scrutiny consists of:

- (a) the Proctors;
- (b) the two Pro-Proctors nominated by the Colleges;
- (c) eight members of the Regent House elected by the Regent House.

Under the provisions of Statute A VII 4, no person may be a member of the Board of Scrutiny who is a member of the Council, the General Board, or the Finance Committee of the Council, or who holds any of the University offices of Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, Pro-Vice-Chancellor, University Advocate, Deputy University Advocate, Registrar, Assistant Registrar, or Secretary of a School. The Statute further prohibits from membership holders of offices with primarily administrative duties designated by Ordinance: Directors and Deputy Directors in the Unified Administrative Service and Assistant Treasurers have been designated as such prohibited offices. A retiring member of the Board who has served for four or more consecutive years is not eligible to serve again as a member in class (c) until one year has elapsed after the end of her or his previous period of service.

If no nominations are received in either case in accordance with the timetable below, the Council shall be asked whether it wishes to appoint a member to any vacant place or for another election to be held, in accordance with Regulation 3 of the regulations for the election of members of the Board (Statutes and Ordinances, p. 112).

Further information about the Board of Scrutiny can be found in the Statutes and Ordinances as noted above, on the Board's website (<http://www.scrutiny.cam.ac.uk/>), and obtained from Dr Lydia Drumright (email ld23@cam.ac.uk), Chair of the Board.

Nomination procedure and election timetable

The nomination procedure and election timetable for the elections to the Council and the Board of Scrutiny is as follows.

In order to be eligible, a candidate for election in each case must be nominated on a paper sent to the Vice-Chancellor at the Old Schools so as to be received not later than 12 noon on Friday, 18 November 2016. The nomination paper must contain (a) a statement signed by two members of the Regent House, nominating the candidate for election and specifying the class in which he or she is nominated, and (b) a statement signed by the candidate certifying that he or she consents to be so nominated. Forms to facilitate the nomination process are available on the governance website (see <https://www.governance.cam.ac.uk/ballots/rh/Pages/Nomination-forms.aspx>). The candidate is also required to provide a statement of her or his curriculum vitae by the same date (see below). No one may be nominated for election in more than one class. The Council has agreed to make known its view that two periods of four years should normally be regarded as the maximum length of continuous service for elected members.

The Vice-Chancellor would be obliged if nominations could be delivered to the Registry in the Old Schools during office hours. Nominations will be published on the Senate-House Noticeboard as they are received; the complete list of nominations will be published in the Reporter on Wednesday, 23 November 2016.

In accordance with the regulations governing the election (Statutes and Ordinances, p. 110), each person nominated for election is required to send to the Registry, not later than 12 noon on Friday, 18 November 2016, a statement of her or his curriculum vitae for distribution to members of the Regent House with the voting papers. It is suggested that such a statement should be of not more than 500 words in length, and that it should cover the following points:

- the candidate's present position in the University;
- previous posts held, whether in Cambridge or in other universities or outside the university system, with dates;
- a note of the candidate's particular interests within the field of University business.

The election will be conducted by ballot under the Single Transferable Vote regulations. Online voting will open at 10 a.m. on Monday, 28 November 2016 and close at 5 p.m. on Thursday, 8 December 2016. Hard-copy voting papers and supporting materials will be distributed not later than Monday, 28 November 2016 to those who opted by 3 November 2016 to vote on paper; the last date for the return of voting papers will be 5 p.m. on Thursday, 8 December 2016.

University salaries and stipends

3 October 2016

The Universities and Colleges Employers Association (UCEA) has proposed a pay settlement from 1 August 2016. The settlement provides for a 1.1% increase in the salaries of non-clinical staff on all spine points, except spine points 11 to 19 where the increases will be as follows:

Points 11 to 14:	3.1% increase
Points 15 and 16:	2.7% increase
Point 17:	2.2% increase
Point 18:	1.7% increase
Point 19:	1.6% increase

The settlement also provides for the removal of the lowest point on New Joint Negotiating Committee for Higher Education Staff (New JNCHES) single pay spine. Accordingly point 13 will be removed from grade 1 from 1 August 2016.

It should be noted that the New JNCHES trade unions remain in dispute over the offer. However, the Universities and Colleges Employers Association (UCEA) has confirmed that the formal dispute resolution procedure set out in the New JNCHES agreement has been exhausted and has therefore advised that implementation of the pay settlement may proceed.

Pending the outcome of further discussions at national level, the Council and the General Board have agreed that increases on the basis set out above should be made in all relevant stipends and salaries with effect from 1 August 2016.

The stipends and salaries of certain University staff require the approval of the Regent House. The Council is accordingly submitting a Grace (Grace 1, p. 31) to the Regent House for the approval of an increase of 1.1% to 3.1% (as specified above) in these stipends and salaries. An updated Cambridge general stipend and salary scale showing the proposed new stipends and salaries for each grade is included in the Schedule to this Notice. This indicates those points which are the 50 points of the national single spine and those points, above and below, which are extensions to the spine in Cambridge. Changes will also be applied to those associated payments directly linked to a single spine stipend/salary point.

Subject to the approval of this Grace, the corresponding increases will be implemented in the stipends of those offices which do not require the approval of the University as well as in the salaries of analogous unestablished staff. In the case of contract research staff and other staff supported on non-central funds, payment of the increase will be conditional on funds being available to meet the cost of the increase from the relevant funding source.

It is expected that, if the Grace is approved, the increases will be paid to staff in the November 2016 payroll.

Notes: University of Cambridge Single Salary Spine

- Note 1: An asterisk (*) denotes a contribution point and progress through these is awarded on merit.
- Note 2: Grade T is for staff who are studying for an approved qualification or undergoing 'in-service' training. Points 1–10 of grade T are no longer in use.
- Note 3: On 1 January 2010 the first contribution points of grades 2, 3, and 4 became service points.
- Note 4: University Lecturers (ULs) and University Senior Lecturers (USLs) will be appointed to grades 9 and 10 respectively. ULs may progress through service points 1–9 of grade 9. USLs may progress through service points 1–3 and contribution points 4–5 of grade 10. Readers will only be appointed to point 2 in grade 11 (point 63). Research Associates and Senior Research Associates will be appointed to grades 7 and 9 respectively. Research Assistants are appointed to grade 5. The contribution points in grades 9 and 11 do not apply to ULs and Readers. They apply to academic-related staff. The professorial minimum will be point 68 in band 1 of grade 12.
- Note 5: For academic staff (other than Professors and USLs) contribution will be recognized through the promotions procedure as now and not by use of contribution points. USLs will also have access to the Senior Academic Promotions procedure under which they may also be awarded contribution points 4–5 in grade 10.
- Note 6: Academic-related professorial-equivalent staff will be appointed on the contribution bands of grade 12 according to the HERA points boundaries for each level.
- Note 7: Specific arrangements will apply to progression in service-related points on some grades in compliance with the Memorandum of Understanding.
- Note 8: Incremental progression through the service related points occurs on the incremental date which will normally be on the anniversary of appointment or 1 April, 1 July, or 1 October respectively for staff engaged on terms and conditions for Manual, Clerical/Secretarial, and Technical Division appointments.
- Note 9: Direct employees of the University appointed to grade 1 will not be paid below spine point 17, with effect from 1 November 2015.
- Note 10: Points 32 and 50 were aligned to the National Single Pay Spine for Higher Education Academic and Support Staff, as negotiated by the Universities and Colleges Employers Association on behalf of UK higher education employers, with effect from 1 January 2014.
- Note 11: On 1 January 2015 the first contribution points of grades 1, 5, and 6 became service points.
- Note 12: Spine point 13 was removed from the National Spine and the University's grade 1 with effect from 1 August 2016.

Roll of the Regent House: 24 October deadline for corrections

1 October 2016

The draft Roll of the Regent House for the academical year 2016–17 (i.e. the list of names which it is proposed to place on the Roll when it is promulgated in November) was published in the Reporter, Special No. 1, on 1 October 2016 (see <http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/reporter/2016-17/special/01/>).

Members of the Regent House are asked to check the list and to make sure that their entries are correct. They should note that the Roll constitutes the list of eligible voters for any elections to the Council or ballots that may be called during the following academical year. Notice of any corrections or amendments should be sent in writing to the Registry at the Old Schools (email: roll.enquiries@admin.cam.ac.uk) as soon as possible; any corrections received by Monday, 24 October 2016 will be incorporated in the definitive Roll, which is to be promulgated on 5 November 2016.

Ballots of the Regent House

3 October 2016

Members of the Regent House are reminded that online voting is the default voting method in ballots of the Regent House. On the occasion of a ballot, those on the Roll of the Regent House (see above) will receive an email alert shortly after voting opens.

If members wish to receive, or to continue to receive, hardcopy voting papers and supporting materials, they should submit a request to opt out of online voting by 5 p.m. on Thursday, 3 November 2016. Members already receiving hardcopy voting papers have been contacted to ask whether they wish to continue to opt out of online voting. New requests to receive hardcopy voting materials should be sent to ballots@admin.cam.ac.uk or to the University Draftsman, in the Old Schools, and include confirmation of the voter's CRSid and the College or Departmental postal address to which voting materials should be sent. Requests to opt out received by 3 November 2016 will be effective until the promulgation of the Roll in November 2017. Further information on ballots of the Regent House is available on the University governance website at <https://www.governance.cam.ac.uk/ballots/rh/>.

Statutes and Ordinances, 2016

The 2016 edition of the University's Statutes and Ordinances has now been published online at <http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/univ/so/> and hard copies have been sent out by Reprographics to the members of the University who ordered them.

Cessation of CamTools service and support

Users of CamTools will be aware that the University is in the process of transitioning to the use of the teaching and learning platform Moodle. The Information Services Committee gives notice that the CamTools system will be taken offline from 30 September 2017. Active support for CamTools, including helpdesk, training, and development services, will cease from 1 October 2016, but CamTools online resources will continue to be available at <http://www.camtools.admin.cam.ac.uk/> until 30 September 2017.

Moodle is only one of the possible services that UIS offers to replace activities formerly supported by the CamTools system. CamTools users should contact their local Computer Officer in the first instance regarding options for their institution/office. For a full directory of additional alternative services, please see the University IT Service Catalogue at <http://www.itservices.cam.ac.uk/>.

Further information on Moodle is available at <http://www.student-systems.admin.cam.ac.uk/moodle>.

Examination results statistics

The examination results statistics publication for 2016 is now available on the Student Statistics Office website at <http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/offices/planning/sso/examinations/>.

Lecture-list, 2016–17

The lecture-list for 2016–17 is available at <https://www.timetable.cam.ac.uk>. Queries regarding lecture-lists and their availability should be directed to the Department concerned.

Notice by the Editor of the Reporter

The Cambridge University Reporter is published weekly, usually on Wednesdays, during the Term. Special issues, including the preliminary and promulgated Rolls of the Regent House, the list of University officers, members of the Faculties, Fellows of the Colleges, and members of University bodies (committees, boards, syndicates, etc.) are also published during the academical year.

Editorial

Notices for publication in the Reporter should be sent, preferably by email (reporter.editor@admin.cam.ac.uk), to the Editor, Cambridge University Reporter, The Old Schools, Cambridge, CB2 1TN (tel. 01223 332305). Items for publication should be sent as early as possible in the week before publication; short notices will be accepted up to 4 p.m. on Friday for publication the following Wednesday. Inclusion is at the discretion of the Editor.

Mailing list

An email alert notifying subscribers when each week's edition of the Reporter goes online, is now available. This email alert contains web links to individual sections of the issue – so readers can identify and select areas which are of interest to them – as well as a link to the pdf version. Those wishing to subscribe should go to the Reporter home page (<http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/reporter>) and click on the blue 'Join the mailing list' button. Queries regarding email subscriptions should be sent to reporter.editor@admin.cam.ac.uk.

Restricted information

Certain material published in the Reporter will be restricted to those with access to the University of Cambridge network (i.e. the Cam domain) and holders of Raven accounts. Separate pdf versions are provided as appropriate.

UAS Bulletin subscription

The UAS Bulletin, a monthly e-newsletter featuring a round-up of news and activities from the Unified Administrative Service and central offices, as well as key issues and policies from within the higher education sector, is now subscription only. A link to sign up to the bulletin, which is available to all members of the University, can be found on the right-hand side of the University staff webpages.

University Combination Room

The University Combination Room is open for the use of current members and retired members formerly on the Roll of the Regent House. Visiting academics may also be issued with access cards on nomination by their College or Department. The Combination Room will be open from Monday to Friday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., unless notified otherwise in the Reporter.

Details of how to gain access to the University Combination Room can be found at <http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/univ/combinationroom/>.

University governance website

An online resource on the governance of the University is available at <http://www.governance.cam.ac.uk> (log in via Raven to access restricted content). With detailed information on the University's governance structure, decision-making bodies, processes, and instruments of governance, the site is designed to help University members understand and engage with the governance processes of the University.

The site also contains papers, core documents, and membership information for the following committees: the University Council, the Business Committee of the University Council, the Audit Committee, the General Board, the Finance Committee, the Resource Management Committee, and the Planning and Resources Committee. Further University committees will be added in due course.

Comments and queries about the site, including from University committee secretaries interested in joining it, should be sent to the Reporter team via the governance email address: governance@admin.cam.ac.uk.

 M.Phil. Examination in Computational Biology
 M.Phil. Examinations in Economics
 M.Phil. Examinations in Epidemiology and in Public Health
 M.Phil. Examinations in Land Economy
 M.Phil. Examination in Management
 M.Phil. Examination in Scientific Computing (Paper 6 only)

For the above examinations the following calculators marked in the approved manner are permitted:

CASIO fx 991 (any version)
 CASIO fx 115 (any version)
 CASIO fx 570 (any version)

(1) Preliminary Examination for Part I of the Education Tripos, and Education Tripos, Parts I and II

Candidates taking papers from the Natural Sciences Tripos will be permitted to use the calculator permitted for that examination (see above).

(2) Geography Tripos, Parts IA, IB, and II

The permitted calculators for use in the Geography Tripos will be the standard University calculator CASIO fx 991 (any version), CASIO fx 115 (any version), or CASIO fx 570 (any version); or the CASIO fx 83S or CASIO fx 85S.

(3) Land Economy Tripos

The permitted calculators for use in the Land Economy Tripos will be the standard University calculator CASIO fx 991 (any version), CASIO fx 115 (any version), or CASIO fx 570 (any version); or the Hewlett Packard HP 10BII. Candidates may take only one model of calculator into the examination hall.

(4) Mathematical Tripos

The use of electronic calculators will NOT be permitted in any papers set for the Mathematical Tripos. Candidates for Part IA of the Mathematical Tripos who offer a paper from the Natural Sciences Tripos will be permitted to use the calculator permitted for that examination (see above).

(5) Medical and Veterinary Sciences Tripos (MVST) Parts IA and IB, 2nd M.B., and 2nd Vet. M.B. Examinations

The permitted calculators for use in the MVST Tripos and 2nd M.B. Examinations will be the standard University calculator CASIO fx 991 (any version), CASIO fx 115 (any version), or CASIO fx 570 (any version); or the CASIO fx 83 (any version) or CASIO fx 85 (any version).

(6) Master of Corporate Law (Financial Management paper)

The permitted calculators for use in the Financial Management examination will be the standard University calculator CASIO fx 991 (any version), CASIO fx 115 (any version), or CASIO fx 570 (any version); or the Texas Instruments BA II Plus or the Texas Instruments BA II Plus Professional. Candidates may only take one model of the calculator into the examination hall.

(7) Master of Finance Examinations

The permitted calculators for use in the Master of Finance Examinations will be the standard University calculator CASIO fx 991 (any version), CASIO fx 115 (any version), or CASIO fx 570 (any version); or the Texas Instruments BA II Plus or the Texas Instruments BA II Plus Professional. Candidates may take only one model of calculator into the examination hall.

(8) M.Phil. Examinations in Land Economy

The permitted calculators for use in the M.Phil. Examinations in Land Economy will be the standard University calculator CASIO fx 991 (any version), CASIO fx 115 (any version), or CASIO fx 570 (any version); or the Hewlett Packard HP 10BII. Candidates may take only one model of calculator into the examination hall.

(9) Other subjects

Papers from the examinations named above may be taken by those who are candidates for other examinations. The restriction on the use of calculators will apply when any paper or subject is offered from an examination which is the subject of this Notice.

It is the responsibility of each student to equip themselves with a suitable calculator as described.

Each such calculator permitted in an examination must be marked by the Department in the approved fashion so that they are clearly identified as being permitted during the examination.

No other calculator may be brought into the examination.

Sale of approved calculators

Approved calculators, marked in the approved fashion, will be on sale from:

- Computer Laboratory, William Gates Building (Computer Science Tripos)
- Department of Chemistry (Natural Sciences Tripos)
- Faculty of Economics (Economics Tripos and M.Phil.)
- Department of Engineering (Engineering Examinations)
- Department of Land Economy (Land Economy Tripos and M.Phil.)
- Department of Physiology, Development, and Neuroscience (MVST)
- Department of Physics, Bragg Building (Natural Sciences Tripos)

Approved calculators bought elsewhere will need to have the approved marking applied by the Department.

Examination in Micro- and Nanotechnology Enterprise for the M.Phil. Degree, 2016–17: Amendment

The Degree Committee for the Faculty of Physics and Chemistry gives notice of an amendment to the notice published on 22 June 2016 (Reporter, 6431, 2015–16, p. 695).

Module NE.03, ‘Materials and processes for MEMS’ has been withdrawn. All other modules remain the same.

OBITUARIESObituary Notices

Mr JEREMY FREDERIC HOWE, M.A., Life Fellow of Hughes Hall and member of St John’s College, Deputy Treasurer 1984–90, Secretary of the School of Clinical Medicine 1974–84, died on 27 September 2016, aged 86 years.

Professor Sir (JOHN GERALD) PATRICK SISSONS, M.A., M.D., London, FRCP, FRCPath, FMedSci, Emeritus Fellow of Darwin College, Emeritus Regius Professor of Physic, Professor of Medicine 1988–2005, died on 25 September 2016, aged 71 years.

GRACESGraces submitted to the Regent House on 5 October 2016

The Council submits the following Graces to the Regent House. These Graces, unless they are withdrawn or a ballot is requested in accordance with the regulations for Graces of the Regent House (Statutes and Ordinances, p. 103), will be deemed to have been approved at 4 p.m. on Friday, 14 October 2016.

1. That (i) the stipends for all non-clinical University staff whose stipends are steps on the Cambridge general stipend and salary scale be increased as set out in the Schedule to the Council's Notice on University salaries and stipends (p. 24), and (ii) the stipends for non-clinical officers whose stipends are not steps on the general scale, except the stipend of the Deputy High Steward, be increased by 1.1% with effect from 1 August 2016, until further notice.

2. That Regulation 7 of the regulations for Allowances to Candidates for Examinations (Statutes and Ordinances, p. 230) be amended so as to read:¹

7. Where the regulations for an examination provide for a candidate to submit by a specified date a dissertation, thesis, essay, or other coursework in addition to the written papers or in substitution for one or more of them, the Council may, with the concurrence of the Chair of Examiners or the Senior Examiner, grant a brief extension to a specified date by which the work shall be submitted. A dissertation, thesis, essay, or other coursework submitted later than the date specified by the Council, or in the regulation concerned if no extension has been granted, shall not be accepted.

¹ The Council, on the recommendation of its Standing Committee for Applications, proposes these changes (i) to encourage applications for an extension to a deadline to be directed to the Council, via its Standing Committee for Applications (rather than to the Examiners), and (ii) to extend the regulation so that it covers all examinations falling within the Standing Committee's remit.

ACTAApproval of Graces submitted to the Regent House on 21 September 2016

The Graces submitted to the Regent House on 21 September 2016 (Reporter, 6435, 2016–17, p. 9) were approved at 4 p.m. on Friday, 30 September 2016.

Congregation of the Regent House on 1 October 2016: Vice-Chancellor's address and election and admission of the Proctors

A Congregation of the Regent House was held in the Senate-House. Before the Congregation, the Vice-Chancellor delivered the following address to the University:

Preface

I begin by celebrating the contributions of those who have finished terms of service to collegiate Cambridge over the past year.

I acknowledge with gratitude the wise counsel and commitment of Lord Mackay of Clashfern, one of our High Officers, who retires from the Office of Commissary at the end of this month after fourteen years service.

Three senior colleagues have stepped down in the last year as Heads of House:

Professor Adrian Dixon of Peterhouse

Professor Frank Kelly of Christ's College

Professor Dame Jean Thomas of St Catharine's College

Professor Dame Jean Thomas and Professor John Spencer retire from terms of service as Deputy Vice-Chancellors.

Two senior colleagues in the Old Schools have also stepped down in the last year:

Dr Jennifer Barnes as Pro-Vice-Chancellor for International Strategy

Professor Lynn Gladden as Pro-Vice-Chancellor for Research

The Librarian, Anne Jarvis, moves on to a new post in the USA and Duncan McCallum retires as Deputy Academic Secretary.

We thank them all warmly for their service, and wish them and their successors well.

We also commemorate with sadness and respect those serving members of the University's staff who have died in the last year: Mr Paul Clarke, Dr Nadeera De Silva, Ms Mary Dezille, Mrs Maureen Everett, Mr Paul Hudson, Mrs Jane Fisher-Hunt, Professor John Forrester, Professor Sir David MacKay, Mr Paul O'Connor, Dr Catherine Seville, Mr Marcin Sukany.

Their loss will be keenly felt, even as their memory will endure.

A global community

This is my seventh and final address to the University. It does not seem that long ago that I stood here and confessed to being both excited and awed by the responsibility that came with being elected to the office of Vice-Chancellor. The excitement has not abated – if anything, it has increased as I have come to understand more fully the vital role that our University plays in contributing to society locally, nationally, and globally. As for the awe in the face of the responsibility – this has not diminished either. And although six years ought to be enough time to get to grips with the challenges of any job, the role has continued to test and to motivate me.

Allow me to refer back to that first address to the University, where I singled out four elements that, in my view, would determine our continuing success as a University:

- the collegiate nature of the University;
- our ability to deliver excellence in education;
- our ability to deliver excellence in research;
- and our commitment to being a truly global university.

Those four elements remain the pillars that make Cambridge successful.

The collegiate nature of the University has been, and remains, one of our greatest strengths. Bound inextricably by history, and by a joint responsibility for students, today the University and the 31 Colleges work in a common endeavour more closely than at any time I can remember. This has been particularly true since the launch, at the end of last year, of the most ambitious fundraising campaign in the collegiate University's history – a subject to which I will return. Working closely with the Colleges has allowed us to establish common practices to manage, in a consistent and joined-up way, difficult issues requiring the attention of the full collegiate University. Whether it is working together to widen participation, to implement safeguarding and welfare policies, or to deal with sexual assault and harassment, there are things that we can only do properly when we do them in concert.

Excellence in education will always be a priority of the collegiate University. I was determined when I took up the post not only to maintain (or even improve) the quality of our educational offer, but also to widen its availability to talented applicants, wherever they were from. There is still much more work to be done in this area, but the increase in the number of graduate scholarships awarded by the University over the past six years is a source of tremendous satisfaction. Widening access to the University has been a personal priority. Attracting students based on their abilities rather than their social or educational background is one of the ways in which we fulfil our mission to contribute to society. And here the results have been promising: since 2011, the proportion of students we have admitted who have been educated in the state sector has increased from 58.8% to 62.3% at present. Our undergraduate student body is more diverse than ever before: 20% of acceptances to Cambridge in the 2015 admissions cycle came from BME backgrounds – the highest it has ever been. We continue to face obstacles to widening participation due to poor academic attainment in areas of low participation across the country. We have responded to those difficulties by enhancing our engagement with schools, and by facilitating College links to schools in low participation areas.

I said in 2010 that research excellence is the defining feature of our institutional landscape, and integral to establishing our international reputation. Cambridge continues to be a worldleader in research. Consider some of the developments driven by our researchers in the last year alone: we are closer to understanding the molecular origins of Alzheimer's disease, which raises the tantalising prospect of developing a preventative treatment for neurodegenerative conditions. Cambridge-led research into the prediction of pregnancy outcomes is now being extended to Kampala, and has the potential to transform the health of women who suffer one of the highest pregnancy complication rates in the world. Researchers in our Department of Chemistry have developed a new generation of batteries with higher capacity, increased energy efficiency, and improved stability, making a significant contribution to the problem of energy security. A multi-disciplinary project led by Cambridge linguists is shedding light on the myriad ways in which multilingualism is vital to individuals and societies. The Department of Architecture is proposing better ways of living with flooding in order to have cities and towns that are more resilient in the face of extreme weather events. The Bronze Age settlement of Must Farm, under the careful stewardship of the Department of Archaeology and Anthropology, has opened up a window on everyday life as it was 3,000 years ago, and has already yielded Britain's largest collections of Bronze Age textiles, beads, and domestic artefacts. Thanks to our astronomers, we are now able to look beneath the surface of planets outside our own solar system. From the molecular level, to the human, to the cosmic – it is this kind of research that continues to set us apart, and that continues to underpin our international reputation for excellence.

But success in this area requires investment, and the University's full commitment to supporting the people who are at the front line of research. Our postdoctoral community is the engine that powers our research capacity. Today it comprises nearly 4,000 researchers across all fields – the fastest growing staff group. Providing better conditions for them has been a particular focus of mine over the past few years, and has been the primary role of the Office of Postdoctoral Affairs, created three years into my tenure. Here again, the role of the collegiate University has been paramount, as Cambridge Colleges are rising to the challenge of welcoming and accommodating these indispensable members of the University. In the field of innovation, and for the third consecutive year, we have broken all our previous records for seed fund investment. This has proved the immense value that the University places on innovation for the benefit of society across a wide range of scientific and technical endeavours.

As for the aspiration expressed six years ago, that Cambridge should commit to being a truly global university, the concrete progress has been very significant. I have repeatedly said that I am against immigration policies that will stymie the flow of talented international students and staff to our University. The fact that Cambridge was one of the four UK institutions chosen to pilot a new streamlined visa scheme for overseas students is a clear indication that we are not only trusted by government in our handling of international students, but that we are one of the UK's best destinations for them. It is a modest step, but it is a step in the right direction. Our instinct for seeking out excellence and setting up enduring and mutually beneficial collaborations has led us to establish strategic partnerships across the globe. Whether it is the successful Cambridge-Africa Programme involving universities in Ghana, Uganda, and elsewhere on the African continent, or the close association with the government of India to pursue new research in crop science, or the creation, with Germany's Max

Planck Institutes, of a Cambridge-based centre for ethics and law – international partnerships are now an inextricable part of the University's make-up. And they will be more crucial to our success in the future than ever before.

There are other areas in which we have also come a long way since 2010. The opening of the Maxwell Centre, in West Cambridge, was one of this year's highlights. Also in West Cambridge, the Department of Chemical Engineering and Biotechnology will start undergraduate teaching in its new building this Michaelmas Term. The expansion of the biomedical campus and the development of North West Cambridge are the most significant capital investment projects in the history of the University, and they have already had a transformative effect on the city itself. The first occupants of the North West Cambridge site are expected to arrive in early 2017. These new developments will allow the University of Cambridge to offer an infrastructure that is commensurate with its standing as a world-leading university. Crucially, they will allow us to serve our local community in new and creative ways. The University of Cambridge Primary School, part of the North West Cambridge development, and now embarking upon a second year of successful activities, is a wonderful exemplar of how we do just that.

In other areas, the University's role as a cornerstone of local development has been emphasized as we have enhanced our regional engagement over the past few years. It is evident that the future of the University is intimately bound with the economic health of the East of England. So we have invested in relationships with local businesses, and with neighbouring higher education institutions – and we welcome the arrival of the newly created University of Suffolk. We have developed closer links with local authorities in the City, the County, and the wider region. We are working together to improve regional infrastructure, and to accelerate rural economic growth. The intense debate around the City Deal demonstrates the high level of engagement by people in and around Cambridge, and the shared commitment to reducing traffic congestion and improving the environment. We have demonstrated that the impact of the University reaches far beyond the city and the Cambridge cluster of businesses, driving innovation, jobs, and growth across the East of England and beyond. In light of imminent decisions around regional devolution and local planning that will shape the future of our region for years to come, this is the right time for the University to step up its involvement in the region. Devolution is likely to bring the region's first elected mayor, with whom we look forward to working.

I took up the reins of the University at a time of great financial uncertainty, and saw it as one of my main duties to secure the University's financial position. In this, I hope to have achieved success – from the unprecedented bond issue in 2012, to the more recent confirmation of our AAA credit rating, the University is today on a firm financial footing. This is due, in no small part, to the steady stewardship of our Registrar, who I am sad to see stepping down at the end of 2016 after nine years in the role, and after 34 years of service to the university sector.

We do not seek financial gain for its own sake. But financial security is central to guaranteeing our autonomy, and to being able to fulfil our mission to the best of our capacity. Philanthropic fundraising is a major component of that financial security. When I last addressed you, the University and the Colleges were about to launch a £2bn fundraising campaign. This has been the most successful fundraising year in collegiate Cambridge's history, with more than £210m raised in a single financial year. This brings the total raised in this fundraising campaign to £743m – a testament to the generosity of our alumni and supporters. Philanthropy is critical to us. It underpins our academic autonomy, and allows us to deliver our transformative research. It brings the best people to study and work with us. They are the people who will produce ideas that change the world. Philanthropy is the catalyst for discovery – and it ensures that discoveries continue, even at a time of unparalleled financial challenges. To all of our benefactors we owe our immense, continued gratitude.

This state of affairs, as I have briefly outlined it, gives me the confidence that Cambridge has the strength to respond to some of the challenges ahead. And they will be quite formidable challenges. Domestically, with the introduction of a Teaching Excellence Framework and the enactment of the Higher Education and Research Bill, we are faced with the prospect of a wholesale transformation of the way we deliver and evaluate education. And while we welcome any measures designed to increase accountability and transparency and to raise standards of teaching, we must remain vigilant and ensure that the proposed solution enables the delivery of excellence, rather than hindering it. We have actively engaged key government stakeholders to help shape both TEF and the HE Bill, and ensure a good outcome for the University. In parallel, the creation of a new body replacing the seven UK Research Councils confronts us with a complete transformation of the research funding landscape as we know it. All this, of course, while the UK government decides the best way to uncouple from the European Union following the 23 June referendum. The outcome of that referendum was not the one I was an advocate for, and certainly not the one that I think would have been best for the University. And we are no nearer today than we were in June to knowing what the full implications of Brexit will be. But it is our responsibility, as a community of scholars and researchers, to make sure that Cambridge continues to thrive in spite of the UK's departure from the EU. Try as we might – and I tried quite hard – we cannot change the current political weather. So we must seek the opportunities that arise from it – not least the opportunity to emphasize our vocation as an outward-looking institution, engaging more widely with the world. It has always been a source of pride to me that, among European universities, Cambridge has been the top recipient of EU research grants. I reject the notion that Brexit will make us less good at what we do so well. We are already defying that narrative, as proven by the recent award of €4.6m for an EU-funded project led by Cambridge that seeks to discover ways in which an artificial pancreas will help children manage Type 1 Diabetes. But our commitment to Europe runs deeper than our access to research funding, or even the essential issue of student and staff mobility. It is a commitment to a shared cultural and intellectual heritage, of which we are firmly a part. On this subject, the University has a duty of leadership that it will not abandon. And of course, because we are not only a European, but also a global university, we will find ourselves in a global competition for talent. Cambridge must retain the ability to compete with universities in the US and Asia – as well as Europe – in a worldwide search for the best scholars. Other challenges are much closer to home, and perhaps more difficult to articulate. I believe that we must resist the notion that universities are places where the right not to be offended takes precedence over freedom of expression. The best way to fight bad ideas is by deploying better ideas. The University of Cambridge is a place where students and staff can expect to be safe from harm, but where they should also expect to be challenged intellectually. The freedom to express opinions – however distasteful some may find them – is the bedrock upon which we continue to build this community of scholars.

The trials ahead are many, and monumental, but Cambridge has never been in a better position to tackle them. We take strength from our strong sense of community. We take strength from our ability to translate academic influence into global leadership and influence. And we take strength from our commitment to contributing to society through the pursuit of education, learning, and research at the highest international levels of excellence. A year from now, my successor will be taking the reins of this university. I am confident that he will be taking over an institution with the resilience and the vigour to withstand any future challenges. And the one thing I will be able to say to him is this: you will be taking on one of the world's most stimulating jobs. But there is much work yet to be done, and (as the past twelve months have shown) a year is a long time in the life of a university. In the months ahead, I will continue to lead the University as it seeks to adapt to the rather unsettled and unsettling new landscape in higher education. In this transition, the team of Pro-Vice-Chancellors that I have come to rely on so greatly will play an essential role. They are the ones who will provide continuity, and ensure that the ship sails steadily even as one captain gives way to another.

Allow me, if I may, to end on a more personal reflection. I have been asked a lot recently: what have I most enjoyed about my time as Vice-Chancellor? What will I remember most fondly? These are difficult questions, not because I can't find an answer, but because I have too many to choose from. I will certainly never forget the sight of one of our national treasures, Sir David Attenborough, dangling dangerously from a rope at the opening of the magnificent new building named after him. Because I like sport, and because I am competitive, I confess that I derived tremendous satisfaction from watching the men's boat finally win the boat race this year. It was a thrill to be following behind them, even in those inclement weather conditions, navigating those choppy waters around the Surrey Bend... But if pressed further about what I have most enjoyed about my tenure, it would probably be this: the people. For anyone with an inquiring mind and an appetite for new knowledge, to be offered the job of Vice-Chancellor at Cambridge is like offering the proverbial child the sweetshop. I have enjoyed the daily company of some of the finest minds in the world. I have cherished being part of a global community of inquisitive and creative men and women – from freshers, to professors, to our enthusiastic and committed alumni across the world. I have felt grateful for the kindness and support you have shown me. And I have felt privileged to be entrusted, by this very community, with the leadership of one of the world's greatest institutions. I hope to have repaid that trust. And though in a year's time I will be handing that responsibility over to my excellent successor, I will never cease to feel that Cambridge is where I belong.

Election of the Proctors and Deputy Proctors and admission of the Pro-Proctors for 2016–17

DAVID JOHN GOODE, of Wolfson College, and RICHARD KEITH TAPLIN, of Downing College, retired from the office of Proctor and delivered the insignia of their office to the Vice-Chancellor.

GORDON CHESTERMAN, of St Edmund's College, and CRISTIANO ANDREA RISTUCCIA, of Trinity Hall, were elected to the office of Proctor for the year 2016–17, were admitted to that office by the Vice-Chancellor, and received from him the insignia of their office.

TIMOTHY NICHOLAS MILNER, of Darwin College, and GEMMA LOUISE BURGESS, of Newnham College, were admitted to the office of Pro-Proctor for the year 2016–17.

DAVID JOHN GOODE, of Wolfson College, DAVID ANTHONY WOODMAN, of Robinson College, and RICHARD KEITH TAPLIN, of Downing College, were elected as Deputy Proctors for the year 2016–17, and made their public declaration in accordance with Statute C IV 3.
