Update on report on the advantages and disadvantages of a policy of divestment

23 October 2019

The Council fully supports the view shared across the University that progress needs to be made on identifying the best ways to deliver a zero-carbon future. It therefore supported the request for a report which would 'set out fully the advantages and disadvantages, including the social and political ones, of a policy of divestment from fossil fuels' and provide costings, as set out in Grace 1 of 25 April 2019 (see Reporter, 6544, 2018–19, p. 489). The work on that report is being led by Dr Ellen Quigley, who is a researcher working on a collaboration between the Centre for Endowment Asset Management and the Centre for the Study of Existential Risk and who has been seconded on a part-time basis to initiate work ahead of the appointment of the Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) Officer (see Reporter, 6544, 2018–19, p. 486). She has been commissioned to consult widely across the University and to draw on the latest research to provide a comprehensive literature review. This Notice provides an interim report and timeline for completion of the final report, in response to the Grace.

Working with the different constituencies interested in divestment within the University and the Colleges, Dr Quigley has assembled a comprehensive programme of events and consultations. Following up on the Council's commitment in its response to the Divestment Working Group report (Reporter, 6511, 2017–18, p. 702), Dr Quigley has also recommended that the University join the Institutional Investors Group on Climate Change (IIGCC) and the Responsible Investment Network – Universities (RINU), which the Council has approved. Dr Quigley's interim report is available to members of the University community at <https://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/cam-only/reporter/2019-20/weekly/6564/interim-divestment-report-Oct2019.pdf> and will be accessible via other channels in the near future. The final report will be provided to the Council by July 2020 and will be made more widely available shortly after that date.

Council is well aware of the urgency in addressing climate change and in particular the need to move fast in responding to the Grace. It is committed to doing this while maintaining an evidence-based approach in keeping with its status as a research institution, and by harnessing the great interest and knowledge already amassed within the collegiate University.

Rules of general applicationDuration*

All papers will be examined by means of a three-hour unseen written paper unless otherwise specified.

Relative weighting

Unless otherwise specified:

- (a) within each paper, all questions will carry equal weight;
- (b) within each question, all parts carry equal weight.

Use of Statutes and other materials in examinations

Where materials are allowed, candidates must use their own unmarked copies. Subject to the proviso stated below, any form of marking – including annotations, highlighting, circling and underlining – is prohibited. It is also forbidden to attach anything to or place anything within the permitted materials. However, candidates are permitted to use unmarked transparent tabs (of any colour). For clarification, it is not permitted to use paper post-it notes. The proviso referred to above is that candidates may write their name and the name of their College on the inside front page of any permitted materials.

Candidates infringing this rule may be required to surrender their copy and may be reported for the infringement. Except for essential valuation tables, candidates who have to surrender their copy will not be provided with replacement material to use in the examination.

Use of calculators

The permitted calculators for use in the Land Economy Tripos examinations will be the standard University calculator CASIO fx 115 (any version); CASIO fx 570 (any version); CASIO fx991 (any version) or the Hewlett Packard HP 10BII (including the + version).

Candidates may not bring into the examinations external media associated with any calculator, such as instruction manuals, magnetic cards or memory modules, but they may bring in spare batteries. Candidates are warned that the Examiners are not prepared to make allowances, when marking, for the malfunction of a candidate's calculator for whatever reason.

Use of dictionaries

Candidates may not bring into the examinations dictionaries of any sort.
