NOTICES BY THE GENERAL BOARD

Probationary Policy

With effect from 1 October 2021

The General Board has agreed to amendments to the Probationary Policy to clarify the probationary arrangements for unestablished Assistant Professors and also to update terminology in the policy from 1 October 2021.

Revised probationary arrangements, including a new policy, were approved in August 2020 (Reporter, 2019–20: 6586, p. 495; 6587, p. 552). Changes in academic titles were approved by ballot in December 2020, to take effect from 1 October 2021, subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council (Reporter: 6582, 2019–20, p. 419; 6601, 2020–21, p. 279).

A further change, approved as part of the arrangements concerning the Teaching and Scholarship Academic Career Pathway but also subject to Privy Council approval, will insert ‘University’ into the new titles of certain offices (Reporter: 6616, 2020–21, p. 559). Under the revised structure, the office of University Lecturer would be retitled University Assistant Professor prior to completion of probation.

The new policy sets out a probationary period, on appointment to the office of University Assistant Professor, for those on the Research and Teaching Pathway, of five years unless it is reduced to a period of not less than three years or waived. For those in the same position but on the Teaching and Scholarship Pathway, the probationary period is three years unless it is reduced to a period of not less than two years or waived. On successful completion of probation, the officeholder is awarded the title of University Associate Professor (Grade 9).

The policy also confirms that the probationary period for comparable unestablished academic posts and fixed-term offices on the Research and Teaching Academic Career Pathway depends on the length of their contracts.1 The Teaching and Scholarship Academic Career Pathway provides for the post-probation title to be updated to Associate Teaching Professor. However, neither the Probationary Policy nor the Reports on academic titles and on revised probationary arrangements state whether the fixed-term and comparable unestablished roles under the Research and Teaching Academic Career Pathway will carry a new title on completion of probation.

The General Board has agreed that fixed-term academic offices and comparable unestablished posts under both the Research and Teaching and Scholarship Academic Career Pathways will be retitled on successful completion of probation, but after the minimum period of service in each case, i.e. three years for those on the Research and Teaching Pathway and two years for those on the Teaching and Scholarship Pathway. This means that in cases where the probationary period is less than the minimum period, roleholders will retain the existing title and adopt the new title only once they have served that minimum period in that role (which might be following an extension to the period of the original appointment). This aligns with the shortest period a person holding an office of University Assistant Professor would need to serve to meet probationary requirements.

The General Board has also noted that in paragraph 4.1 of its Report on the implementation of the Academic Career Pathways scheme (Reporter, 6547, 2018–19, p. 562), it included a reference to confirmation of tenure, which might be misunderstood as indicating that the University had adopted an approach similar to the tenure-track process in US universities. The correct position is that a University Assistant Professor who has met the probationary requirements will be awarded the title of University Associate Professor in recognition of this achievement. It has therefore agreed to replace references in the policy to confirmation of tenure with references to confirmation of appointment and to the ending of tenure with the ending of the appointment.

NOTES

1 See paragraph 4.2 of the policy. See also the addition to this paragraph made as part of the Teaching and Scholarship Career Pathway proposals (see Annex C).
The Board is also taking the opportunity to make corrections to the table concerning the length of the probationary period for comparable unestablished academic posts on the Research and Teaching Academic Career Pathways scheme in paragraph 4.2 of the policy. The amendments confirm that the table covers appointments that last exactly two or four years:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Appointment duration</th>
<th>Length of probation period</th>

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Up to 1 year</td>
<td>6 months</td>

<tr>
<td>More than 2 years and up to 4 years</td>
<td>2 years</td>

<tr>

</table>

For the same reason, it is also making similar amendments to the table concerning the length of probationary periods for fixed-term posts on the Teaching and Scholarship Academic Career Pathways scheme in paragraph 4.2 of the policy:
